

The Bournemouth Standing Advisory Council for Religious Education report 2015-2016

What an exciting and somewhat challenging year it has been for Bournemouth SACRE! In January 2016 we had to say goodbye to Rubina Nassar who as a part-time RE advisor had been our LA officer for SACRE. This position was taken on by Peter McNutt who I am very grateful to for the support he gave both SACRE and me through the review of our syllabus.

The world has changed a great deal since the last syllabus review 5 years ago and because of this and the misrepresentation of Muslims in all sections of the media we decided that a greater emphasis should be put on the teaching of Islam. In the reviewed document it is to be taught at each Key Stage.

We engaged a great deal with our local Islamic community for support with this and they worked extremely hard to ensure that the Muslim sections of the reviewed syllabus reflected the true face of their beliefs. On a personal note it has been a pleasure to support them by arranging a day long training session with the members of their community who will be going into schools to give workshops and being invited to observe workshops as a critical friend

I would like to thank all those on the four committees who attended our SACRE meetings and were part of the Agreed Syllabus Conference who worked so hard to achieve this satisfactory conclusion.

Once again a big thank you to Margaret our clerk for her excellent support throughout the year!

Lynda Ford-Horne
Chair of SACRE

Introduction

The Autumn Term 2015 marked the start of an important year in the lifespan of the Bournemouth's Agreed Syllabus for Religious Education, the time to initiate a review and decide on the way forward for the next 5 years. The previous syllabus had been popular as it encouraged an enquiry model whilst allowing schools to teach essentially a reduced content allowing deeper study.

The review coincided with a time of renewed discussion in the academic world about Religious Education, how it is delivered, how content is decided, how it is assessed and indeed the very purpose of it. This is reflected in recent developments in the national RE world, the Church of England leading the way by encouraging the teaching of 'concepts' and theological literacy through its 'Understanding Christianity' resource. Although this resource was released after the syllabus review was completed, we were mindful of its impending arrival and of the aims behind it.

Agreed Syllabus review

The process of reviewing the joint Bournemouth and Poole RE syllabus took much of the year with regular consultations and meetings. Teachers were consulted through a questionnaire sent to all schools and the termly network meetings. Those who attended the network meetings were consulted directly on the timings of the religions studied and how the previous syllabus had worked practically in their context. The results of this consultation are reflected in the new syllabus.

The process involved collaborations between teachers, members of faith communities and SACRE members. It was in the most collaborative effort yet for those of us who have been involved in several such reviews and showed a real spirit of co-operation and a desire to provide the best syllabus for children and teachers.

Bournemouth and Poole met separately and together to discuss certain aspects: the consultation process was long and all points raised were considered before the final syllabus was agreed and launched at an event in June.

Agreed Syllabus Launch: Primary RE Conference

Friday 17th June 2016 saw the launch of the new joint locally agreed syllabus for Bournemouth. The launch took the form of a conference event which included an input from Jan Lever, who had led the review for the SACREs, about the new syllabus, the changes and reasons for the changes from the previous syllabus.

The rest of the day was dedicated to helping the teachers present engage with local faith communities and highlighting the core content in the new agreed syllabus. There were inputs from both Bournemouth and Poole SACRE faith and worldview communities concerning Judaism, Islam and Humanism. Each input was well received and led to question and answer sessions.

The conference was well attended and a memory stick containing the new syllabus was distributed to all present on the day. There will be the chance for follow up sessions on the syllabus at forthcoming network meetings.
